NEW SCHEDULE DECIDED UPON BY THE ESPEE

Additional Boats To Be Put On; Richmond To Be Advertised

In a short time Richmond will have one of the best automobile and passenger ferry services that there is at any point on San Francisco bay.

From the best of authority yesterday a representative of the Southern Pacific learned that the company has made all arrangements to inaugurate a fifteen minute service between this city and San Francisco.

Officials of the railroad have been making a traffic survey of the entire northern part of the state, and shortly before the Golden Gate Ferry Company puts on its ferry service between Berkeley and San Francisco the new fast service from Richmond will be started.

The Southern Pacific has the additional boats with which to maintain such a service, and in order to divert more traffic this way Richmond will be advertised by the railroad in all parts of the state, as being the "short and quick way" to San Francisco.

With an adequate ferry service running between Richmond and San Francisco, a drive of about twelve miles will be saved motorists.

A number of members of the Richmond Rotary Club will travel to Woodland today for a visit to the Woodland Rotarians at their weekly luncheon. While in Woodland the party will also visit Jack Thornton, brother of George Thornton, Jr., of Richmond, recently elected sheriff of Solano county. They will also participate in a matched golf game between Richmond and Woodland Rotarians, visit H. A. Johnston's stock farm and Jackson's bird farm.

In the local party will be Earl Bonfield, Howard Flint, T. H. DeLoe, John F. Galvin, George Thornton, Jr., George Rooker, Howard E. Merry, C. C. Kratzer, L. Ballenger, James A. McVittie and Johnson, Fred B. LaMoine and Frank Mero.

Two hundred and fifty white-capped yachts and speedy motor boats in spectacular races in Carquinez Straits will furnish thrills to the thousands of motorists who will attend the dedication and opening of Carquinez Bridge, next Saturday, May 21st, the world's greatest and largest highway structure.

Under the auspices of the Pacific Inter-Club Yacht Association, a sensational "hang and go" motor boat races will be staged starting and ending under the north span of the great bridge with eleven classes of sailing craft will race before the breeze from McNear's Point to the south span of the mighty bridge, a distance of fourteen miles.

The aquatic events next Saturday will bring together the greatest gathering of yachts and other pleasure craft that have ever participated in a single celebration in San Francisco bay, according to Warren H. McBryde, chairman of the special Carquinez Bridge

COUNCIL PAY RESPECT TO F. A. SCHOLES

Out of respect to the memory of the late councilman Frank A. Scholes, but little business was transacted by the council last evening and adjournment was taken until 8 o'clock tonight.

The following resolution was adopted by the unanimous vote of the members present:

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT TO THE MEMORY OF FRANK A. SCHOLES

WHEREAS in the inscrutable workings of Divine Providence our esteemed fellow Councilman, Frank A. Scholes, has passed on beyond the borders of our earthly sojourning; and

WHEREAS, through four years of close association with him as a member of this Council we have learned to know and value his kind and sincere personality, and his thorough integrity of purpose;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE Council of the City of Richmond that we recognize, in the passing of Councilman Scholes, that our community has suffered the loss of a splendid and exemplary character, and that this Council has lost a most highly respected member, who, in his labors amongst us, evidenced always the most worthy motives and rendered most valuable service in promoting the best interests of the City of Richmond. And we hereby tender to the members of his family, in this their time of great sorrow, our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy, trusting that their grief may be assuaged by lasting memories of his life so nobly lived.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the bereaved family under the seal of the City of Richmond.

Mayor Chandler then asked that the members of the Council and those present stand for a moment in silent prayer in respect to Scholes.

Councilman Scott then made a motion to the effect that it was fitting that all further business be suspended and the meeting was adjourned.

High Tribute Marks Passing Of Councilman

Last Rites For Scholes Show High Regard Of Community

With city officials of Richmond, fellow members of the Elks and Muscote lodges and a host of other friends present to pay final tribute, last rites for City Councilman Frank A. Scholes were held yesterday afternoon from the Wilson and Kratzer chapel.

Rev. Frank A. Woten, pastor of the First Christian church, and Rev. R. Locken, former pastor of the same church, officiated at the services held at the chapel. Hundreds of beautiful floral pieces in evidence indicated the high esteem in which the dead city official and automobile dealer was held.

The funeral procession from the chapel was one of the longest and most impressive ever held here. Headed by an escort from the police and fire departments, it extended for many blocks along Macdonald avenue. At the head was a beautiful floral float in the form of an automobile, the offering of the automobile men of the city.

Interment took place at Sunset view cemetery, with Harbor Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, in charge of the services at the grave. The same pall bearers that officiated at the funeral of the councilman's wife two months ago, acted in like capacity yesterday. They were Edward A. Hoffmann, A. J. Furrer, H. H. Mylander, J. O. Ford, Ralph Pettillon and Fred Caudle.

25 Perish In Mad Sweep Of Flood Waters In Louisiana

South With Back Against Wall As Waters Make Way To Gulf

(By Universal Service)

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—Twenty-two people were dead in the sweep of waters west of the Atchafalaya river tonight.

Mrs. Eugene Dupree and eight children died at Hamburg at Big Cane, Louisiana. A man's body was found near a barn below Plancheville, Louisiana; a man, his wife and child were drowned when a house floated away in the rush of waters near Dunkin.

Three others not dead in the crash of a barn. The waters flowing south through the bayou Des Glaisses crevasses and a breach in the Atchafalaya indicate that the towns along the Mississippi below Old River are safe of any future danger of exceptionally high water.

The situation becomes dangerous west of the Mississippi river and it may mean that the entire country will be affected. Water has spread through St. Landry parish and is moving south with rapidity. It means that many small towns will be destroyed.

Herbert Hoover, Governor Simpson, Adjutant Toms and others with 300 coast guard boats are taking people out of the sections affected tonight.

Among the boats listed as coast guard are some of those of the best known millionaires of the United States. One man jumped overboard south of Plancheville to save a woman and child who refused to get off a boom. He forced them aboard the craft. He was Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

Such deeds have been told all over the section where the rescue work is going on as the waters make their way to the Gulf and drive hundreds from their homes.

Rumors Rife In Appointment Of New Councilman

Whether the council will make an appointment tonight of a member of the council to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late F. A. Scholes, is a moot question.

Rumors of all kinds have been prevalent on the street, so that almost any kind of information desired could be secured, but there did not seem to be anything authentic to any of them.

Under the charter it will take five votes to appoint, and apparently, from the scurrying around that is being done, no candidate has the necessary number at his command.

Among those mentioned for the place are Frank M. Wilson, Glen Conn, Dan W. Reardon, Harry O. Watson, Marie L. Ogborn, W. N. Snelgrove, Isaac McGuffin, Chas. H. Brown, Ben Warrington, Lud M. Johnson, Dr. B. Hinkley and Tsar N. Calfee.

The $25,000 reward by Rodman Wannmaker to the rescuers of the two men stimulated the search today. This increased the rewards to $53,000.

STORMS ON ATLANTIC DELAY FLIGHT OF THREE FLYERS

Dissention In Bellanca Camp May Postpone Flight Of Aces

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, May 16.—The weather man, who has set himself up as a traffic cop in the airplane race to Paris, kept his "stop" hand up all day. He half-way promised to give the "Go" signal tomorrow or Wednesday.

Today's storms over the Atlantic gave Commander Richard Byrd, the North Pole bird, another day in which to prepare for the race with "Lucky" Lindbergh in his one-man Ryan monoplane, and Clarence Chamberlain and Lloyd Bertaud in their Bellanca.

All Three Ready
Lindbergh, Chamberlain and Bertaud have been ready for several days. Every hour of their delay gives Byrd, who came from behind in the preparations, a better chance of getting away with the rest.

No Blame Fixed In Death Of McNulty

"Accidental death, with no responsibility placed" was the verdict of a coroner's jury at an inquest conducted by Coroner Aubrey Wilson last night at Pittsburgh, into the death of John Joseph McNulty, 32, Richmond ball player, killed in an automobile crash at Pittsburgh on Sunday, May 8.

The jury absolved Emmett Daley, Richmond, and Charles McKee, Governor of Pittsburgh, drivers of the automobiles figuring in the fatal collision, from all blame.

McNulty was killed while enroute home with several companions from a baseball game at Pittsburgh.

The boys who found Charvez, were: Dan Regeno and Joseph Sousa, both of San Pablo; William Perry, 1127 Washington street, Albany; Fernando Viramonte, 816 Addison street, Berkeley, and Peter Sanchez of Richmond.

Authorities have not as yet determined how long the man had lain on the highway after the accident, which is believed to have occurred when Charvez's automobile failed to make a sharp turn near the hotel. Both jaws were fractured and the man was internally injured.

Funeral services for Charvez who was a widower and leaves no children, will be held from the family home, 108 Maine avenue, Richmond, this morning at 9 o'clock. Father Harold Collins will officiate. Interment will follow in Sunset View cemetery. The body is at the Wilson and Kratzer morgue, where arrangements are being made for the inquest.

American Toll Bridge Company Withdraws Petition To Reduce Tolls On Carquinez Bridge

MARTINEZ, May 16.—Following presentation of a petition to the Board of Supervisors, application of the American Toll Bridge company for permission to reduce tolls on the Carquinez Straits bridge was withdrawn this afternoon.

At a special meeting Thursday morning the board will act on the application, which was withdrawn when the mode of procedure was questioned.

The bridge company filed the petition earlier in the day asking approval of a proposal to reduce fares on Carquinez bridge effective with the formal opening of the span on May 21, but with the proviso that if the bill extending the franchise from 25 to 35 years is not signed, the company may revert to the original toll schedule.

In its application to the supervisors the company reserved the right to apply for an increase in the future in the event that the reduction does not meet the operating expenses of the bridge.

A partial list of the fees asked to be reduced, follows:
Automobiles, from 75 cents to 60 cents; passengers, 15 cents to 10 cents; two wheeled trailers, 50 cents to 25 cents; four-wheel trailers, 75 cents to 50 cents; ambulances, 1.25 to 80 cents trucks, 25 per cent. Other fees are reduced proportionately.

OUR HISTORIES

Occasionally we hear something about the inadequacy and unfairness of the text books on history in our public schools. At various times different criticisms are offered but the principal one is to the effect that the history of important events on which our government is founded, is not always stated emphatically enough to impress the youthful mind with admiration and enthusiasm, so that these events become firmly fixed as essential factors in the foundation of our country.

Immediately following the close of the war there was a general criticism of our school histories. So sharp did this become that alterations were made in a great many histories to meet the popular demand. As a result, the criticism recently has not been so marked.

Doubtless the situation has improved some but is still behooves our patriotic citizens to keep an eye on the way history is written for our public schools. There has been a marked increase in the volume of the so-called "liberal" movement during the past few years, although this movement is really anything but liberal. The scions of the "liberal" cult, usually pacifists and internationalists, profess to believe that patriotism is out of date and that to worship one's flag is decidedly archaic. They realize that the best place to start the inculcation of their doctrine is with the young and if some of the important patriotic events of our early history can be eliminated from or slighted in the history text books in the public schools their work will be much easier.

To the average person this point may seem trivial at first. But if you will think back over your own school life for a moment, re-remembering how your youthful soul was thrilled with the story of Paul Revere and Nathan Hale, of Bunker Hill, and the early trials of Washington, Jackson and other heroes you will come to realize how important a part these historical episodes had in forming your ideas of nationalism and patriotism.

Fortunately the "liberals" are not having things their own way. The patriotic people of the country are keeping in touch with the situation and they are receiving aid and assistance from fine organizations like the American Legion and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

It may change your opinion some about the nature of Long Island to know that they have been suffering from forest fires there for the past few weeks.

One of the worst combinations we know of is a high powered car with a low powered brain above the steering wheel.

DEAR SKINNY

Little while ago I made a keen play for favor with the skinny folk, or so I thought, in a talk which I entitled "Be Plump If You Would Be Happy." In the course of which I tried to explain how lovely it is to carry just a little superfluous flesh and how eager I was to help young people accumulate more flesh and everything in short a deliberate attempt to appeal to the skinny element. But I dunno, I reckon the printers must have changed the word happy to sappy or something, for the returns were just the opposite from what I had hoped to receive—almost no skin-ny ones at all wrote in, but Great Jupiter, what a flood of affectionate notes I received from the fat women—they were just too happy because I had called 'em plump. Now the truth is they're fat, frightfully fat unblushingly fat and all seriousness aside they wanna reduce if it can be accomplished without missing any bits in the way of eats or without putting their flabby muscles to any vulgar use in walking, jumping, rope or playing the Brady symphony.

Now listen, skinny, I'm fed up on fat people. A reasonable amount of fat is all very well, in fact I cordially approve of it for every one under 40, but Jimmy Christmas some people carry a joke too far. I'm getting tired of it and I wish the fat women would stop crowding and shoving and give some of the skinny ones a chance. Probably a lot of the poor things are standing away back out of the danger zone, waiting until the conditions will permit them to come forward with that austere dignity which a skinny woman always wears wrapped about her.

Skinny people seem to make a virtue of necessity, for they need to keep something wrapped around 'em to keep 'em warm. A lot of fat is the best kind of insulation. If you haven't such a blanket you must wear more clothing, heavier underwear and thicker turtlows for comfort. These fat person abhors, or should, and in fact the jolly, good natured fat ones do, but the gloomy gussies, whose obesity is only part and parcel of a hypothyroidism, wear incredible amounts of clothing and feel most comfortable in hot weather when the jolly good natured fat ones are most distressed. So on general principles it is advisable for the Skinny Winnies to wear lots of sweaters, wool socks, fluffy skirts, plenty of feathers or furs and keep well covered at all times. Experienced women know it is better to keep a man guessing than to run the chance of frightening him to death.

Among many thousands of underweight youths drafted from ladylike jobs for war service there was an average gain of twelve pounds in weight in the first four months of physical training in the army camps. This is a good health hint for both young men and young women who are underweight and have not had a fair physical education.

Skinny folk who contemplate trying yeast tablets or cod liver oil pills will gain just as much contemplating as they can taking the stuff. But in some cases the eating of real yeast or the taking of plain cod liver oil does help to build up desired weight.

Now, then, let's understand each other. I am really fond of quiet, demure, pleasant spoken skinny folk, as long they don't attempt to kiss me, and in spite of everything I may have said I'd rather have one letter from a skinny woman than a whole basketfull from the fat ones—gosh, I'm certainly fed up with the jokes—I mean the facetious things the fat ones say about their condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Horor Scope

Three doctors tell a different tale. A says albuminuria, b says infected appendix, c says fallen stomach. Symptoms are gas, nausea, severe pain in stomach * * * backache. * * * (D. L.)

Answer—And for all we know the three doctors may be right. However, it is not a health question. You should submit the question to a physician.

The Professor Tells 'Em
You seem to be a unanimous minority on the coll question. Glance over this item and let us have the low down about it. (D. G.)

Answer—The item is a newspaper clipping telling of an educational lecture delivered by Prof. Eugene S. Hinman of the nose and throat department of Albany Medical college to a group of Brooklyn physicians. Dr. Hinman tells 'em, according to this newspaper report, that eating meals late at night just before going to bed and the excessive use of alcohol are factors of colds—whatever colds may mean to Brooklyn physicians. He further tells 'em, according to the item, that "drafts," long the object of fear as the cause of colds, are not nearly so liable to produce colds as wet feet." This faint praise of drafts, coming from a spokesman of the conservative wing of the medical profession is rather sardonic humor, I think. Haven't the conservative physicians been warning the credulous public for fifty years or more to secure fresh air but beware of drafts? Apple sauce is still apple sauce no matter how you serve it.

Proud Flesh
Please tell me what can be done with flesh that grows in a wound and hinders it from healing. (O. O. A.)

Answer—Whenever the skin or other tissue is destroyed or removed, the raw surface must be kept clean and free from infection. This is a process of new growth of tissue, sort of scaffolding, to fill the defect. Granulation tissue is bright red, shiny, velvety in appearance. It consists of minute tufts of new blood vessels covered with a layer of tender new connective or repair tissue cells. It must fill the defect to about the level of the surrounding normal skin before the skin will grow out over it. The skin grows out over the edges all around, like ice forming on a pool. At this stage antiseptics or unnecessary handling or washing or dressing only retard healing. Once the wound is surgically clean it is best left undisturbed. If the granulations grow up higher than the level of the surrounding skin, that is called "proud flesh." You can do nothing about it. Surgical treatment is essential.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counsellor

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers' names are never printed. Only questions of general interest answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamp, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

YOUTH CONTRIBUTION DAY

I have never been kissed. Do not be shocked, readers. The remark is from the letter of a young man who writes:

"But you need not be alarmed, Dr. Dean, because I have at different times taken the aggressive side of the argument and kissed these fickle women."

"I am not adept in dancing, necking, or any of the other so-called higher arts, but when any one wants to talk with me about Aristotle, Spinoza, Isben, or B. B. S. I am there."

"But all these things are forgotten when I take a girl out in society I am a boob. I wish I knew the formula for the right amount of study, love and work that is necessary for us of the younger set."

Here's a call for a bit of mathematics. Let's see if I can use my Algebra. Let X equal the proper amount of work which a boy should do, and Y the proper amount of study, and Z the proper amount of love and when we solve the problem we will have the answer to this puzzle which "Model Seventeen" as he signs himself, submits to us. If we tackle the proposition as I have outlined it three equations will be required, in order to obtain the values of the three unknowns. However, write out three equations, I can see how a simple equation might be written reading:

"Life equals a certain amount of work, plus a certain amount of study, plus a certain amount of love." A very good equation, but what are the certain amounts? Here I am back where I started.

This boy believes in love. "I want it," he says, "and have been made fun of and once even flogged by a girl because she thought that fellow possessed a better line and physiognomy than I had."

"In the eyes of the world," he writes, "I am a shy young thing conforming strictly to the laws of the community, a person who lacks moral verbatim to stand out and advertise myself. I am the model boy of the neighborhood and am disgusted at being pointed out as the Angel of the Street."

Educating The Feet.
"Sometimes I think I will give up all this studiousness, take up dancing and make one grand debut—What matters it if I know who strangled Aethulpa if I know a boob of myself on the dance floor? I wonder if there are any boy readers of this column who are in the same plight as myself? I wonder. Let's face the issue."

Which is more important: to make a boob of yourselves, boys on the dance floor or later in business to be an imitation of the long eared braying animal because you educated your feet at the expense of your head?

Is a dancing man who is adept in the "higher arts," to quote a girl, going to succeed better in business, to have the more wholesome respect of his community than the fellow who can deliver vocational goods and read G. B. S. after working hours? Is the boy who is the Angel of the Street handicapped for life? (And the boy who is the Devil of the Alley to be the Fowler of America?)

Now boys for the come-back. Here's the question—it's "Model Seventeen" you know. ARE THERE ANY BOY READERS OF THIS COLUMN WHO ARE IN HIS PLIGHT?

SYNOPSIS

Mary "Elaine" Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is an orphan. Wally M. is a young reporter, loves Mary and she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, Bobby and David. David is sentenced to prison for an auto fatality. The Charity Department takes Bobby. Wally proposes; but Mary goes to New York, gets a cloakroom job in a night club. It is raided. Mary is adjudged to have criminal influences, and is sentenced to a reform school. She gets a letter from Bobby, who is ill, and runs away to visit him.

She had said she would need her, and she had which was as bad as the chest which lay the rasp. After lifting a very thin hand, with which to stroke her hair, once, it was all he could manage—he fell asleep again, both his hands in hers.

It was so that they found them, thin, spiny Mary Campbell, the superintendent who blew through the door as though she had been lifted by the wind of a shock and set down in the exact spot to which her duties called her. Miss Campbell was a bit out of breath, and seemed to lose even more of the sight of Mary in the raincoat, sitting stiffly beside the bed. Mary had anticipated this, of course. It was not the shock to her to see Miss Campbell to see Mary. Her face, as she stood there in the doorway, seemed not quite to grasp the enormity of the offense which had just been telephoned from the Home, upstairs.

"It doesn't seem possible," she said to Maria. Gaspeth it, rather, in terrible enjoyment of the Whereat Miss Campbell turned and, left, locking the door behind her. Some of them, reflected Miss Campbell on her way to the Board meeting, some of them were heard beyond all belief. It did not matter whether they owned the faces of old painting or were the common run of girl with shiftness lurking in their eyes when they thought you were not aware of them. Hard, the result of drink and cigarettes and the hiccough of jazz.

The business of the Board meeting was being handled with the usual smoothness that comes of efficiency and long practice. The usual tones of Mrs. Lorna D. Churchill reading the report of the last meeting. Fluff of feathers about her neck where the veins stood on guard, and longfingert held the smart distance before her eyes to read the report. The many babies, fed, and clothed during the past year, this number received, these graduates sent out to homes that had been found for them. Minute study of the Kitchen list had resulted in the discovery of pilaged groceries. The cook had been discharged. Donations to the sum of twenty-three hundred dollars had been secured toward the building of the new creamery. There would be no mention of names, as had been requested. Mrs. Lorna D. Churchill lowering the longfingert and beaming at the rows of the names and careful interest on the faces beneath them—but it was commonly known, of course, whose was the generous spirit that had contributed more than half of the sum. Spirited applause of gently gloved hands, and glances toward Arthur Graham in the rear of the room. The asylum was one of the numerous "hard actualities" in which Arthur was endeavoring to find the reason for numerous oddities of nature, including that of one existence.

Mrs. Lorna D. Churchill didn't believe—glancing through the pages of the report before her—she didn't believe—slowly—there was anything else in the minutes. No. There was nothing else. They were now ready for the business of the present meeting. She resigned the chair to their gracious president.

The length of leg as she stepped from the platform, giving her place to their gracious president. The interchange of smiles. The whisper of something to be explained or something in the report—the understanding smile of the gracious president. Mrs. Lorna D. Churchill settled in a seat at the president's right.

The tapping for order. Now. The business of the present meeting was ready, but before that was taken up would Miss Campbell answer them with the delightful anecdotes of her children, little trivialities and smacks of banter which had burst from their little happy hearts during the week since the last Board meeting.

TRUE STORY OF NIGHT LIFE IS AT CALIFORNIA

It's here at last—the real "inside story" of Broadway.

The picture which arrived at California Theatre today is "CABARET," a story of the night life of Paris. It is a story of love and crime, of the many temptations and the many dangers of the night life of Paris. It is a story of the many temptations and the many dangers of the night life of Paris. It is a story of the many temptations and the many dangers of the night life of Paris.

Tom Moore adds Remount! Chester Conklin Comedy! "CABARET" is a story of the night life of Paris. It is a story of love and crime, of the many temptations and the many dangers of the night life of Paris. It is a story of the many temptations and the many dangers of the night life of Paris.

"CABARET" was written by a master melodramatist, Owen Davis. Chester Conklin is co-starring with Tom Moore. Robert G. Vignola directed.

Other film features include the second chapter of "On Guard," "Topics of the Day," and "Aesop's Fables."

Marine corps discipline gave William Haines, screen celebrity, a new idea of peeling potatoes. Haines, playing the remount in "Tell it to the Marines," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle, coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday to the California Theatre, was, with Lon Chaney and other actors, under Marine discipline while on board the battleships for the picture, by cooperation of the United States government. He was absent from morning roll call one morning and was sentenced to "kitchen duty" for the next day. He got a good laugh out of it too.

Lon Chaney plays a veteran peasant in the new picture, and Haines, Florence Boardman, Gerald Moore, Frank Currier, Edith Gordon, Maurice Keane, Michael Levey and other notable actors in "Tell it to the Marines" are on hand to help Haines in his battle with the potatoes and the other exciting detail. George Hill directed the production.

TALE OF THE OPEN SPACES AT RICHMOND

In "The Flaming Forest," which opened yesterday at the Richmond theatre, Cosmopolitan has turned out one of the best pictures of the year.

The story, which is interpreted by one of the largest and most important casts of the year, is packed with suspense from the opening scene until the final fade-out but at the same time there is a sufficient amount of comedy to relieve the many tense and dramatic situations.

The screen story is by Waldemar Young from the famous novel of the same name by James Oliver Curwood, and, like most thrilling story from the pen of that famous author, deals with the organization of the Northwest Mounted Police at one of the most critical periods in the history of the Dominion of Canada.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the work of Antonio Moreno and Renee Adoree, who head an all-star cast of seventeen well known players.

Other film features include "Slippery Feet," a Bobby Vernon comedy; "Topics of the Day" and "Aesop's Fables."

Saved From Bright's Disease; Remains Well Eleven Years

San Francisco, May 13, 1927.

When I first met Fong Wan at Eighth and Clay streets, Oakland, eleven years ago, I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. The pain in my back extended to my legs and knees and was so severe that it was difficult to move around. I had previously gone to several kidney specialists, who had pronounced me incurable. I was suffering from Bright's Disease, but had not been able to do me any good. Then I took the Fong Wan Herb Treatment, and I have felt fine during all these years.

Being a traveling man, I have to ride day after day all over the State. This is naturally very hard on my kidneys. As a matter of precaution, every spring I take one or two weeks of the Fong Wan Herb Treatment and thus keep my kidneys in good shape.

I have known Fong Wan so long that he has become my friend as well as my healer. I have recommended a number of my acquaintances to take the Fong Wan Herbs, and without exception they have obtained satisfactory results.

THE BUILDING OF OUR PROSPERITY ON A FIRM BASIS

OVER-PRODUCTION? NONSENSE—LOSS OF PURCHASING POWER.

Purchasing Power of the People Basis of National Prosperity—Present Unscientific Tax Laws Make for Business Depressions and Unemployment.

By CHARLES JOHNSON POST.

PRODUCTION is the basis of national prosperity; and production cannot exist unless such goods are purchased; they cannot be purchased unless there is in existence at the same time a purchasing power; and purchasing power is dependent upon the amount of value of production that is turned back to the nation in the form of wages. This is fundamental.

"There are three fundamental problems confronting the business life and prosperity of this nation," said Mr. Root, President of the American Association for Scientific Taxation. "One: the maintenance and development of the purchasing power of our nation. Two: the vital necessity of reforming our present hodge-podge unscientific tax laws that are not only considerably diverting the annual purchasing power of the United States but are actually attacking it. Three: the getting rid of the vicious doctrine that unthinking business men and manufacturers often accept, that we must go through recurrent periods of 'business depression' as normal incidents of business life."

"Let me refer to the last mentioned at once. Solely business men will talk of business depression as due to 'over-production' while at the same time the country is full of men and women who wish to Heaven they had the money to buy the goods that the manufacturer makes. The term 'over-production' is misleading. As Professor Sumner of the Department of Economics at Yale said years ago, 'there is no such thing as over-production of goods; there is such a thing as over-production of goods at a price'."

"The problem is one of 'under-consumption,' or, to put it in a more business like form, the problem is one of maintaining the purchasing power of the nation; not only of maintaining it but also of extending it. So far as we do this we shall abolish hard times, and prevent the dying down of business in recurrent depressions."

"In common sense, until the needs of all the people of the United States have been supplied, there can never be such a thing as 'over-production.'"

No Wages—No Buying
"But there can be such a thing as loss of purchasing power through the stupidities of legislation, through the short-sighted avarice of certain types of employers and the greed of a few millionaires of many of the keener-minded business men and even business groups, to the importance of preserving the purchasing power of the nation."

"If people cannot buy because wages are low, or there are no wages at all through lack of a job, or farm products bring small prices and farming is depressed, of what use is the best planned sales campaign to a manufacturer or business man? So the retrocesses—and still further reduces the nation's purchasing power. Of course it is important that the business shall keep its chin above water in order to prevent total drowning; but why run the economics of our business swimming on the basis that every man and woman must expect to be drowned or nearly drowned? No swimmer ever won a race who was taught to swim on the theory that he must naturally expect to drown every hundred yards."

Here's Great Book
"I want to say right here that I have been tremendously impressed with Henry Ford's latest book, 'Ford and His Future,' in which he advances the claim that the remedy for hard times is to raise wages and reduce prices. To raise wages is to raise the purchasing power of the country; and to lower prices is to thereby increase the amount of goods consumed and thus causing a greater volume of manufacture, to lower costs of manufacturing that quantity production invariably develops. I believe that this work sponsored by Henry Ford is one of the most important books that has been published in the field of business in recent years, and that no serious-minded, thinking business man can afford to pass it by."

"Why, the only thing that has kept the United States prosperous since the Great War has been the fact that we have kept up our purchasing power through keeping on with the high war-time wages, and this in turn has reacted to the manufacture of more goods—silk stockings, dresses, automobiles, and every form of necessity and luxury. What an absurdity it is for business men to solemnly denounce the working men, or women, who revel in luxuries above their station! 'Phonographs,' 'Radio,' 'Silk stockings for women folk! Cotton's good enough.' One even hears sometimes, a critical comment about the American workingman riding around in automobiles. Well, why shouldn't he? The great automobile industry, with all its dependencies, would never have gained its front rank position with only the rich for a market. It is the wage earner and the farmer who have raised this colossal industrial and financial structure. One of the great single sources of our post-war prosperity has been the fact that so many American workingmen could buy automobiles."

OVER-PRODUCTION? NONSENSE—LOSS OF PURCHASING POWER.

By CHARLES JOHNSON POST.

PRODUCTION is the basis of national prosperity; and production cannot exist unless such goods are purchased; they cannot be purchased unless there is in existence at the same time a purchasing power; and purchasing power is dependent upon the amount of value of production that is turned back to the nation in the form of wages. This is fundamental.

"There are three fundamental problems confronting the business life and prosperity of this nation," said Mr. Root, President of the American Association for Scientific Taxation. "One: the maintenance and development of the purchasing power of our nation. Two: the vital necessity of reforming our present hodge-podge unscientific tax laws that are not only considerably diverting the annual purchasing power of the United States but are actually attacking it. Three: the getting rid of the vicious doctrine that unthinking business men and manufacturers often accept, that we must go through recurrent periods of 'business depression' as normal incidents of business life."

"Let me refer to the last mentioned at once. Solely business men will talk of business depression as due to 'over-production' while at the same time the country is full of men and women who wish to Heaven they had the money to buy the goods that the manufacturer makes. The term 'over-production' is misleading. As Professor Sumner of the Department of Economics at Yale said years ago, 'there is no such thing as over-production of goods; there is such a thing as over-production of goods at a price'."

"The problem is one of 'under-consumption,' or, to put it in a more business like form, the problem is one of maintaining the purchasing power of the nation; not only of maintaining it but also of extending it. So far as we do this we shall abolish hard times, and prevent the dying down of business in recurrent depressions."

purchasing power—the higher his taxes; and the lower proportionally his purchasing power.

Destructive Taxes

"But our unscientific tax system does worse than this. For it not only taxes more heavily the farmer who is able to add more purchasing power for the manufacturing markets of the country, but it favors with the premium of lower taxes the less industrious and less efficient farmer. Our unscientific tax system thereby puts a premium on inefficiency as well as a penalty on effective industry! Could anything be more unscientific or destructive to our national purchasing power?"

"And, from still another angle 'this same unscientific tax system of ours is destructive of our national purchasing power; for our unscientific tax system operates quite as destructively in cities. Whenever our purchasing power attempts to exert itself we levy taxes against it and so weaken it. Observe the process. When any man erects a building on a piece of property his taxes are levied against the building according to the local tax rate—approximately about 3 per cent per year; this makes the rents higher if it is a rented building, or the price higher, if it is built for sale, and thus lessens the market for its sale."

"But this is not the whole story of our present unscientific tax system in relation to that building. For in the erection of that building a vast variety of products of manufacture have to be purchased and used; and at every stage of the manufacture of these products, upon the buildings, machinery and corporation producing the manufactures, there has been levied a tax. The mining companies who have taken out of the ground the iron, lead, zinc, copper and tin that go into the beams and plumbing and various fixtures have paid a tax upon the process of their manufacture—a tax on their machinery, their buildings and factories, upon their income also and upon their franchise and upon all productive processes of their industry. Then there is the lumber—a tax upon manufacturing, and upon the mills and factories and their income; and industry. And this tax is levied every year upon the manufacturing power of the nation. Every item that contributes to the complete house has had a tax levied against it at every stage of its manufacture through the unscientific tax levy against the business that fabricates it."

Cities Favored

"In other words, we are taxing unscientifically and destructively our own purchasing power, and to the advantage of no one—except the person who does not build."

"Thus we do not tax industry into existence; the trend in taxation is to restrict it. We place the premium of lowest taxes upon those who do not develop industry and who do not assist in developing our national manufactures; and the highest taxation is levied upon those who constitute the great market and purchasing power for our national business and manufacture."

Bleeding the Farmer
"Let me illustrate. A farm, a dirt farmer's farm, has as its basic value, fertility. Pioneer farms with the original fertility still existent are gone. Each year the farmer with his labor—and by the purchase of fertilizers out of the savings from his past labor—must have its fertility renewed. The farmer's labor fences his fields, it lays the drains in them, his labor erects farm buildings and keeps them in condition, his labor sows crops and reaps them, his labor plants orchards and tends them, his labor cares for his cattle, the saving from his labor buys farm machinery—in fact, it is his labor that makes the value of the farm. If anyone is inclined to doubt this, let them try to buy a farm and they will at once note that the price and value of the farm is in direct ratio to its fertility value, and the condition in which the farmer has kept his buildings, herds and orchards and equipment."

"Well, what do we under our present unscientific tax system do? We levy taxes against the farmer's labor in the main; and we thereby leave him that much less to go into the purchasing power of the farmer or into the general capital investment account of the nation. The harder he labors—in order to improve his annual chasing power of this labor, while the tax on the location value of land, in the production of which no labor is involved, does not lessen any purchasing power. It would seem just and for the benefit of business to revise our tax system so as to take the undeserved tax burden from the farmer, leaving him that money to buy goods with, and to transfer this burden to city land, which can bear it without lessening the value of anyone's labor."

64 Per Cent Taxation:

"Could any system of taxation be less scientific or more harmful to our national business?"

"Is the stunning effect of these taxes negligible? I will refer you to an authoritative statement by Roger Babson in Forbes Magazine. The tax percentage of their net profits paid out by agriculture and related industries is 64 per cent! And each year, bear in mind. In mining and quarrying, 64 per cent. In construction, 18 per cent. In finance, banking and insurance, 29 per cent. In wholesale and retail trade, 14 per cent. And in manufacturing as a whole, 14 per cent. These figures are startling. For, as every business man knows, taxes are paid out of surplus, and not out of gross income. In other words, these present unscientific taxes fall upon the surplus income of individuals—upon that portion of their earnings which form the savings fund for reinvestment or spending in our national markets. Our present tax systems strike directly at our annual purchasing power, or what is equally vital, at the surplus that is added to the capital fund by which business expands and greater economic efficiency is developed."

"It is no wonder that Roger Babson, one of the most widely known of business analysts and statisticians, has also recently said with emphasis that our tax systems are 'woolly-witted' and 'short-sighted.' He points out with equal clearness the fact that 'directly or indirectly, the cost of government absorbs a very large proportion of surplus of the individual and thereby vitally affects recreational and educational life, investment, building up of capital account and attainment of financial independence.' For, as he specifically points out, 'taxes are paid from surplus rather than gross income.' And he goes on in words that every business man would do well to read and think over: 'For reasons which I have given, I cannot help looking at our increasing local taxation as extremely ill-advised in its economic effects. . . . In other words, the public is careless and neglectful in its early stages of this economic cancer and like many a patient may wake up only when the malady is far advanced. Everything possible should, therefore, be done to impress upon the people the real facts about taxation—that it menaces both rich and poor, the well-to-do and those of the middle class. Some economic evils hurt only a part of the people at the time. But short-sighted and woolly-witted taxation be a scourge that preys upon all the people all the time.'"

Scientific Taxes Needed

"Certainly these are important words, and by no visionary dealing in impractical idealisms. Roger Babson is a business analyst whose counsel is sought by many large enterprises in economic and commercial matters."

"And again, we have the head of the Department of Economics of Yale University, Professor Irving Fisher:

"'Premising,' says Professor Fisher of Yale, 'that so important a change should not be made abruptly, I favor the gradual reduction, so far as possible, of the tax burden on industry and labor and taking instead the economic rest of the bare land.'"

"Our prosperity has been great since the war because we have preserved our purchasing power in direct high wages. We have reached the peak for the time; but we dare not, as business men, and from motives of mere self-interest, ignore the factors that are draining our purchasing power annually and that will inevitably destroy us through unscientific taxation, unless we face the problem and solve it with the intelligent application of scientific taxation."

ALL ARTICLES IN YOUR HOME PAY TAXES AT EVERY STAGE OF MANUFACTURE

Just now the farmer is irritated, just as so over the tariff. But the tariff is the football of politics, and will continue to be. Every politician, Republican or Democratic, knows the ease with which the wage earners in industry can be lined up against the farmer on tariff issues; the wage earner can be frightened with hobgoblins of pauper labor and the blacklisting threats of closing mills until he will practically neutralize the farmer revolt. True, local Congressmen may suffer, State political machines may weaken temporarily, but, nationally speaking, little will happen. The farmer will continue, and for some time to come, to sell his farm product to the free trade markets of the world that will dictate the price of demand, and buy in the highly protected tariff markets of entrenched domestic industry.

Unscientific Taxes

"Our present tax system, in every State, is bleeding its farm population to death. Our present tax methods and systems are nothing less than the evolutionary hodge-podge from the unscientific past. Our tax methods are not only utterly unscientific, but are actually destructive of our national prosperity and the markets for our manufactured wealth. Our tax systems are founded, generally speaking, upon the idea that we must tax the products of industry; thus the cardinal principle of our present unscientific tax methods is to actually levy taxes—and taxes are invariably restrictive—upon the production of the very manufactures upon which our national wealth and prosperity must depend."

"In other words, we do not levy our taxes scientifically so as to encourage the production of wealth and manufactures, but levy them against the manufactures with the unescapable and actual tendency to discourage and hamper manufacture and wealth production. Taxes added to the product manufactured make its cost to the consumer higher, thus lessening the possible number of customers; and by lessening the number of customers, through such higher prices, we lessen the normal and needed amount of wealth production together with the number of people that can be earning wages in its manufacture and distribution. And the obvious and equally unescapable fact is that thus we lessen, in turn, the consumption of the manufactures."

POSSIBLY no man has, by his years and experience, a keener insight into the problems of merchandising and manufacturing than Charles T. Root, retired, but still retaining an active directorship in the United Publishers Corporation, of which his own business was the basis and of which he was the first president for many years.

This association publishes such authoritative journals as the "Iron Age," the "Dry Goods Economist," the "Hardware Age," the "Boot & Shoe Reporter," "Automobile Industries," and some dozen other business and trade periodicals that have for years been powerful factors in the commercial development of the country. Mr. Root has been, of his daily business life, a close student of the economic problems of the nation; a student and a practical man whose business it has been as the chief of commercial journals, to analyze the practical business problems that express themselves in various politico-economic forms. And he is the first president of the American Association for Scientific Taxation.

ing and purchasing power of the nation. No wonder we have recurrent business depressions; we have them whenever the vast consuming group loses its purchasing power.

"And under our present unscientific tax system the farmer is the chief, direct sufferer, together with the manufacturer, upon whom he reacts in loss of purchasing power. It is this loss of purchasing power that is making the farmer cry out—even though he sees somewhat less dimly what is hurting him."

Bleeding the Farmer

Each year the farmer with his labor—and by the purchase of fertilizers out of the savings from his past labor—must have its fertility renewed. Tex Ricard Displays Master Showmanship In Fight Plans

(By Universal Service) NEW YORK, May 16.—That slipper and bewildered diversion of our fellowman, variously referred to as grandfathers, old fogies, and the older generation like to talk about showmanship of one P. T. Barnum. Their children speak right enthusiastically when discussing the production of one David Belasco.

But we have a gentleman in mind, who to our knowledge never answered a curtain call—although like Barnum he has imported certain curiosities for the people to look at—and him we would like to enter in this showmanship contest.

His name is George L. Rickard, although you may not recognize him unless we call him Tex. King promoter of the boxing game.

Rickard's latest triumph of ballyhoo has to do with a foreign curiosity, labeled with the startling name of Paulino Uzcudun. Barnum's elephants and kangaroos were made to order for him before he imported them respectively from "the dense jungles of A-F-rica," ladeez and gentlemen, where the rays of the blazing sun are unable to penetrate and from the flat plains of Anstralia where head hunting aborigines deftly manipulate the deadly boo-O-merang.

Belasco's actors and actresses have their individual publicity agents.

But Rickard's importations come to him in the raw. They must be shaped and shined and polished till they glitter like "championship gold," whether or not ring test proves them dross.

Ten months ago Paulino Uzcudun was merely a foreign name offering any number of opportunities for mis-spelling or mis-pronunciation. Reference to the Spanish boxer brought up vague pictures of a bulky senior with a boxing glove tied on his right hand and a glistening ax grasped in the other. With the right hand he was known to flatten such willing "flattens-ees" as Joe Beckett and his English kinsmen.

With the ax grasped in the left hand Paulino was said to cause great consternation in the Spanish forestry department by decimating innumerable Spanish hills of their native woods, and thus he became "Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish wood chopper—and boxer supreme."

Today it is Paulino Uzcudun, a leading challenger for Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown—who is already signed to meet Jack Dempsey in a million dollar bout at the Yankee Stadium which is expected to draw a million dollar gate.

It is the best that the public should think of Paulino as a wood-chopper. It is a tribute to Rickard's masterful ballyhoo that he keeps the public gaze from wondering in retrospect back to Senior Uzcudun's awful boxing exhibitions against Knute Hanson, turkey-headed Wisconsin boxer, and Thomas Heeney, big boomerang man from New Zealand.

But Rickard's talent becomes all the more wonderful when it is recalled that he is merely repeating his formula by which he makes challengers out of ham foreign talent.

By the same process which gives Paulino a million dollar bout with Jack Dempsey, a huge Argentine businessman, Luis Angel Firpo, as clumsy as a bear and more hairy, was made to order for a shot at boxing's greatest prize, the heavyweight crown.

Yet and here is the most remarkable part of Rickard's craftsmanship, he makes the customers like it. The fans went away from the Yankee Stadium that September night when the careless American heavy weight champion was knocked out of the ring only to come back and knock the clumsy foreign challenger loose from his senses, praising is as the "battle of the century."

Bouts are often called the "Battle of the Century" before they take place, but seldom after.

Barnum's customers were born every minute. Rickard's fans, if the record crowd of the Sesqui-centennial is considered, are counted into this world by a stork bureau which checks arrivals on the schedule time by referee's hands counting out a fallen boxer.

Tod Morgan May Call Off Tour

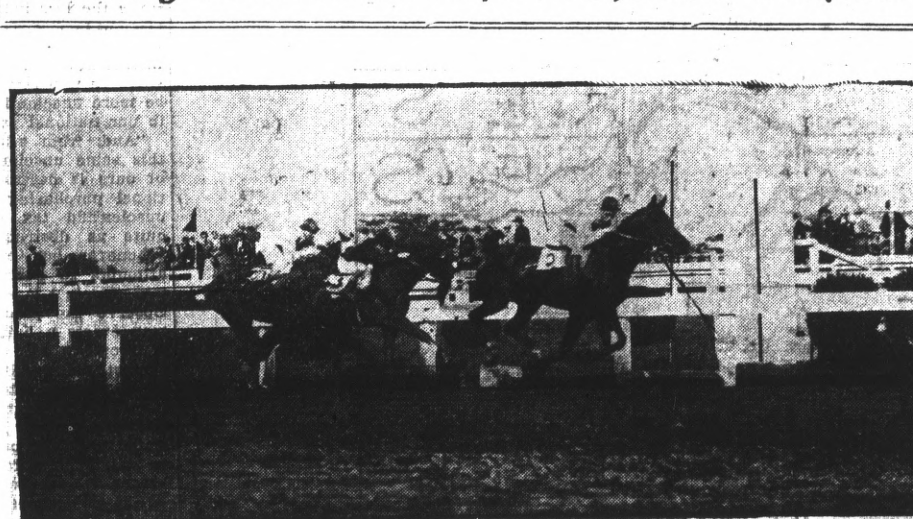

SEATTLE, May 16.—Tod Morgan, light-weight champion of the Pacific Coast and snare in several bouts, if he is successful in his championship fight with Vic Foley in Vancouver, B. C. May 26, is indicated here today.

The champion and his manager, Frank Churchill, were not very favorably impressed with the decision of the New York Boxing commission that Tod must box Jack Bernstein before any other man in New York, and it is believed that Morgan will stay clear of that section for awhile.

Local Sportsmen At S. F. Show

More than forty thousand people, including many from Richmond, thronged the historic A. Y. F. fair grounds in San Francisco Sunday when the annual Sportsmen's show of the Associated Sportsmen's Clubs of California got under way, according to R. B. Leung, president of the Richmond Sportsmen's club.

The most startling feature of the show was a replica of Mount Lassen in full eruption which was more than eighty feet in height and about 400 feet in diameter at the base.

Interesting exhibits of wild birds, fish and predatory and tame animals were scattered over the fair ground.

Dougalls Take Two More Tilts

Manager Archie Kemble's Dougalls Hardware nine emerged victorious in two contests played Sunday in Oakland against the Century Athletic club and a team of Camp of Woodmen.

Kemble's outfit downed the athletic club by an 11 to 1 score, and repeated in the afternoon against the Woodmen by an 9 to 1 count.

The locals hit the ball hard and often in both games and played well in the field, the only palpable muff being made by "Merc" Glum on a fly-ball.

PLEA AGAINST MORE TAXATION MADE BY ROLPH

Making strenuous objections to the passage of any ordinance or regulations levying any further burden of taxation, George M. Rolph, president of the California & Hawaiian Sugar Refining Corporation, yesterday appealed to the Board of Supervisors to arrest manufacturing to lend aid as it can to industry in its present day battle for existence.

Rolph's plea followed the near approach of a final vote on the ordinance providing for electrical inspection and an inspector to receive his compensation from fees collected in the unincorporated communities.

FRENCH ACE TELLS WAR EXPLOITS

an aviator. On March 22, 1917, they gave me pilot's license No. 793. I wanted to go to the front at once, of course, but was refused. Each young pilot had to await his turn to get into action and he had to be better perfect before he was allowed to pilot his skill against enemy airmen.

My time was spent at practice in driving old planes between Avord and Bourget and other towns. On one of these trips, through the air with an ancient Farnam plane, I was going along nicely at an altitude of 2,000 feet when the propeller snapped off and I was compelled to plummet to the earth, where I landed with a heavy shock that tossed out of the cockpit.

I had no time to pay attention to my bruises; I hastily adjusted a spare propeller I had been carrying and rising in a high wind I made a jump, for which I had been heading, in thirteen minutes. But my real flying career began on April 8 when I was sent to the front with some other aviators.

Soon as I reached Dunkirk I put my machine in order and was given a good mechanic named Ponchon. A great friendship sprang up between us at once, although he was a rough, uncouth and slangy fellow with a hot temper.

On April 11 we suspended several high powered bombs under the plane, loaded our machine gun, and armed with Mausers and service pistols, we made a running start and took off into the air, launched on my first big aerial adventure. I said:

"We are going to Oostende. I want to see the master touch of this dangerous work in a hot zone, for I intend to qualify as an ace."

My ambition was fired in the go-off to reach the top of my profession as soon as possible. I had heard of some of the wonderful exploits of Geymer and Nungesser, the French aces, and I longed to follow their example.

Unfortunately, I was too self-confident on my initial trip. When we reached No Man's Land near the enemy trenches and barbed wire entanglements, I flew too low, and in my anxiety to reach the Boches crouching in the dugouts.

Ponchon had taken a hand grenade and let it fly, but the sound of its explosion hardly began before the enemy's anti-aircraft guns belched out, and a swarm of shell rained upward, and burst.

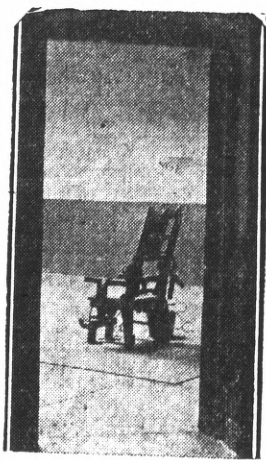

Six large splinters of flying iron struck the plane, almost knocking it over. It spun around banked and began to drop. Swiftly working the controls I managed to straighten it out, put on the gas, and with our exhausts fairly thundering, I curved the machine up into the higher regions. Here our engine stalled, as it had been before, and coming down we barely landed within the French lines.

That experience taught me caution but did not dampen my ardor, for we worked until far into the night getting the plane in perfect condition, and next day we were in the air again, looking for the enemy.

Our course carried us over Roulers, where a battery was lurking. We gave them one of our bombs and sped on to Houtulot with the rest of the No. 90 shells, and two boxes of steel darts, to try to silence their guns.

Two of the shells fell and exploded with force enough to shake our plane, and we let the darts drop in showers. They went into the bodies and heads of the outposts, as if driven by a six-inch gun. A volley of artillery shots came up at us without doing any material damage, but on the way back another shell fragment put our rudder out of commission, and we were forced to glide down behind our second line trenches for repairs.

That conflict seemed to alter my whole character. I was a changed man. I wanted to kill, kill, kill. I was continually in the air looking for victims, to glut myself with the blood of foes that I had learned to hate with a fierce intensity. It made me restless, uneasy, when I was not in the air hunting them. I had grown cunning. I learned night flying, and all the dangerous tricks our experts excoriated in the sky.

The rumble of my motor was now heard every night over Cambrai and Bravelle, where I succeeded in wiping out a nest of machine guns.

earth he announced he will be ready Thursday. His rivals fear he will be ready before that and may hop off with them Tuesday or Wednesday if the weather permits.

Lindbergh, the lone wolf of the sky, did not take his plane out of the hangar today. There is nothing else to do to it, he said.

New discussion was reported in the Bellanca camp, with the main question being as to whether the row today centered about a test flight to Washington and the radio equipment.

G. M. Bellanca, the designer, reported that Chamberlain and Bertrand would make the flight to Washington this afternoon to test a new earth inductor compass. He quoted the aviators as saying they would make the trip. But when the time came the plane remained in the hangar.

Radio Causes Strife

Then there is strife in camp over carrying a radio outfit which Bertrand favors in spite of the opposition of Bellanca and Charles A. Levine, the financial backer. Bertrand has said he would not make the trip without the 60-pound outfit which the others want to throw overboard.

Bertrand and Chamberlain are still arguing for a new contract with Levine. The original contract called for the aviators to split fifty-fifty with Levine on the $100,000 prize money. In addition they had insurance for their families and other considerations. They have said they would not fly unless they got this. However, every one in aviation circles believes that all their differences will be settled by the time the weather clears up.

Three of Byrd Plane
Announcement was made tonight that Bert Acosta will be the third member of the Byrd party. He will act as pilot. Byrd will be the navigator and George O. No. 1 will be the radio operator.

Acosta was selected by Floyd Bennett, who was originally chosen as pilot but will be prevented from making the flight on account of injuries received in a recent crash.

Ignited Gasoline Inflicts Burns

When fumes from a pan of gasoline in the bathroom of his home ignited, W. C. Watkins, of 1226 Roosevelt avenue suffered painful burns about the hands and face early Sunday morning.

W. C. Watkins, Jr., 17, had cleaned a pair of trousers with gasoline and had left the pan in the bathroom. When the father returned late at night he lit a match because the electric light failed to burn. The fumes rising from the gasoline immediately burst into flame.

Watkins was taken by Patrolman George Bengley to the emergency hospital for treatment.

Butler, 124 South Fifteenth street; Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Rowland, 236 Fifteenth street; Mr. and Mrs. William Burk, 207 First street and Mr. and Mrs. L. Beasley, 6113 Stockton street.

OH YES! I can wear smaller, daintier shoes since I use Tiz. It is because my feet are never swollen or tender any more.

The minute you put your feet in a Tiz bath, you feel pain and tenderness drawn out. Oh! What relief. No more, tired, aching, burning, shoe-chafed feet.

Tiz draws out the poisons and acids that puff up your feet. Get a box of Tiz for a few cents at a department store.

A Worthy Investment

The replacement of bonds and stock certificates that have been lost, stolen or destroyed by fire can be accomplished sometimes, but the task involves trouble, expense and legal formalities.

The possibility of loss of valuable articles is avoided by men and women that keep them in a fire-proof, thief-proof safe deposit box in the American Trust Company. The annual rental of a box is small.
